Three OSI Facilities Receive Environmental Recognition Awards from NAMI

Aurora, IL, USA, February 2, 2018 – The North American Meat Institute (NAMI) presented its annual Environmental Recognition Awards at an annual awards ceremony and luncheon on January 30, 2018, during the 2018 International Production and Processing Expo (IPPE) in Atlanta, Georgia.

Ninety-six companies received Environmental Recognition Awards, honoring their dedication to continuous environmental improvement, as witnessed by the development and implementation of Environmental Management Systems.

NAMI recognized three OSI Group facilities for their sustainability efforts. The OSI facility in Geneva, Illinois received a Tier 1 Environmental Recognition Award for formally starting its journey to being a better environmental citizen, and the OSI facilities in Fort Atkinson, Wisconsin and Oakland, Iowa, each received a Tier 2 Award from NAMI in recognition of further advancement of environmental programs.

Since 2012, four other OSI locations have also received environmental recognition from NAMI for the programs instituted in their facilities, including locations in Chicago and West Chicago, Illinois; and West Jordan, Utah.
